The Autonomic Nervous System. The peripheral nervous system consists of the somatic nervous system (SNS) and the autonomic nervous system (ANS). The SNS consists of motor neurons that stimulate skeletal muscles. In contrast, the ANS consists of motor neurons that control smooth muscles, cardiac muscles, and glands.

Autonomic nervous system (ANS) is a functional division of the nervous system, with its structural parts in both the central nervous system (CNS) and the peripheral nervous system (PNS). It controls the glands and smooth muscle of all the internal organs (viscera) unconsciously. This is why it's also called the visceral nervous system.

So we just categorized the peripheral component of the somatic motor system in three ways: Site of origin, structure of the efferent pathway and ganglia (one highly myelinated axon, no ganglia in somatic system), and we identified its effector (skeletal muscle). Lets do the same for the two divisions of the autonomic nervous system and compare.

subconsciously through the autonomic nervous system to modulate the involuntary functions of the body. This overlies a strong circadian rhythm of autonomic function. The somatic nerves that innervate voluntary skeletal muscle are not part of the autonomic system, but will be discussed in the final lecture.
